

The Department of Health required an informative stand to meet delegates and distribute literature. The stand space was 9m² and open on only one side.

A bright-looking stand was required using existing stocks of modular panel and pole display equipment that Manktelow Ltd store for the DH. A computer displaying websites was required and it was decided to produce a custom-made cabinet branded with the DH logo for the display of literature.

Manktelow Ltd produced all artwork to be used on the design of the graphic panels. The panels, produced in-house, fully covered the display system, including the door to the store, to create the impression of a solid wall.

To enhance the clean, light appearance of the stand it was decided to lay a platform floor covered in aluminium finish vinyl. Furniture from our stock in white, chrome and beech finish complemented the look.

Our team organised all on-site services, including a supply of fresh fruit, which was distributed from the stand as part of the NHS 'Five A Day' campaign.

Manktelow Ltd were responsible for design and production of all graphic panels, supply and installation of IT equipment, transport, installation and fully-insured storage of all display equipment and furniture.

Incorporated into the stand wall were a computer monitor and a custom-built literature unit for display and storage
